

Achieve for PSY 254

Achieve Read & Practice is the online resource for How Children Develop, 7th edition. It includes the full eBook as well as adaptive quizzes to help you study.

The information for Dr. Lew-Williams' Achieve course is:

Course URL: <https://achieve.macmillanlearning.com/courses/g67mxd>

Course ID: g67mxd

To register or purchase access to Achieve:

1. Buy an access code from eCampus. Follow these directions to register your code.
2. Go to our Achieve course URL and follow these directions to purchase access to Achieve alone.

How does Achieve work? Please watch this video (it was recorded for an earlier edition, but the Achieve features remain the same).

How can I get Achieve support?

Please reach out to the Macmillan Customer Support team. You should go to <https://mhe.my.site.com/macmillanlearning/s/chat-with-us> and click on "Chat With Us". You'll be asked to enter the product and other info. Once you start the chat, it takes about two minutes to answer all of the pre-programmed questions, including being referred to the help articles (which you should glance at, since they may help you resolve the issue). If the articles weren't helpful, please give that feedback, and you'll be offered the option to speak with a Support agent on the phone or have your issue emailed.

We recommend choosing to call, since that's the fastest option. You'll be given a case number and a 1-800 number to call, and when you call the 800 number you'll provide your case number so the support agent can skip over all of the name, contact info, etc. questions that you've already answered in the chat. Should you choose to contact Support via email, please note that responses may take a day or two, and you should watch for messages from bfw.technicalsupport@macmillan.com in your spam/junk email folder.

Macmillan's Support team is available on the phone every day, even for some hours on weekends. If Support isn't able to resolve your issue, please send Dr. Lew-Williams the case number that you received on your call/email, which can then be escalated to the Macmillan representative.
